SECOND EDITION.

The unexpected demand for the Register for 1834 requiring a new Edition to supply the calls of the public, it was thought desirable that it should appear with the Compiler's corrections, &c. made since the first edition was issued: it has accordingly been revised by him, and more than 200 names and additions have been added with all the corrections which have come to his knowledge.

The XIIIth number of the Register of New-Hampshire by the present Editor, is now offered to the Public, with the expression of his thanks to those gentlemen who have so promptly furnished him with corrections and information suitable for the work, and especially to Mr. GEORGE W. ELA, for the use of his interleaved copy of the Register for 1833. All publications of this kind must, from their nature, be more or less imperfect and inaccurate, but if individuals competent to give information, would, without solicitation, forward corrections within their knowledge, such annuals might be made much more perfect than they are, and the labor of making hundreds of written and personal applications on the part of compilers, might be obviated. It should be remembered that every single correction may confer an advantage on some portion of the community.

Concord, 1833.

Entered according to Act of Congress in the year 1827, by JOHN FARMER, in the Clerk's office of the District of New-Hampshire.

Be compos'd ev'ry toil, and each turbulent motion
That encircles the heart in life's treacherous snares;
And the hour that invites to the calm of devotion,
Undisturb'd by regrets—unencumber'd with cares.

How cheerless the late blooming face of creation!
 Weary Time seems to pause in his rapid career,
 And fatigued with the work of his own desolation,
 Looks behind with a smile—on the grave of the year.

Hark! the wind whistles rudely—the shadows are closing
That inwrap his broad path in the mantle of night;
While pleasure's gay sons are in quiet reposing,
Undismay'd at the wrecks that have number'd his flight.

Since the last solemn reign of this day of reflection,
 What throngs have relinquish'd life's perishing breath!
 How many have shed their last tear of dejection,
 And clos'd the dim eye in the darkness of death!

DESCRIPTION OF NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE is situated between 42 deg. 40 min. and 45 deg. 16 min. north latitude, and between 4 deg. 30 min. and 6 deg. 15 min. east longitude from the city of Washington. Its length is 168 miles, and its greatest breadth is 90 miles, and its whole area is 9491 square miles. It is bounded N. by Lower Canada, E. by the Atlantic Ocean, S. by Massachusetts, and W. by the western bank of Connecticut river, on which lies the State of Vermont.

New-Hampshire has been called the Granite State, from the quantities of that rock quarried within it; and the Switzerland of America, on account of its wild and picturesque mountain scenery, its lakes, cascades, &c. The largest collection of water within the state is Lake Winnepiseogee, [Pronounced Win-ne-pe-sok'-e] which is one of the most varied and beautiful in the United States, and has for several years, been a favorite resort of travellers. A new steam boat called the BELKNAP, made her first excursion across this lake on the 4 July, 1833. New lines of Stages have been established at each extremity of the lake, and an active communication between the lower and upper part of New-Hampshire and a portion of Vermont, is anticipated as the result.

Besides this, are Connecticut, Ossipee, Umbagog, Squam, Sunapee and Massabesick lakes, which afford fish and fowl. Their borders are commonly distinguished for their varied excellence, and their surface is not covered by bulrushes and other aquatic vegetables which so frequently deform the small lakes of other countries in low latitudes. Hardly any thing can be more delightful to the eye of the traveller than these fine pieces of water. The streams of New-Hampshire are sufficiently large and numerous for manufacturing and other purposes. Five of the principal rivers in New England have their sources within its borders. The air is pure and salubrious, and the climate, though severe, very healthy. The soil is generally fertile, and mostly capable of cultivation. Some of the best lands are those bordering the rivers, which are enriched by the annual floods. The hills afford excellent pasturage. By far the greatest part of the inhabitants is engaged in agricultural pursuits.

The mountains of New-Hampshire deserve attention. The White Mountains, which are the most celebrated, are situated in the lower part of the county of Coos. These have among them some of the highest peaks in the United States. Mount Washington towers above all the rest, having an altitude of 6,634 feet. An avenue has lately been cleared to its summit, which will render the access comparatively easy. Moosehillock, in the east part of Coventry, has an elevation of 4,500 feet, and the Grand Monadnock in Jaffrey and Dublin, 3,253 feet.

The state abounds with fine grained granite, of which large quantities are transported to Boston, New-York, and some to the southern states. Iron and copper ore of excellent quality, are found at Franconia; and very good plumbago, or black lead at Bristol. Our limits do not permit us to speak of the internal improvements, and of the manufacturing establishments at Dover, Great Falls, Lamprcy River, Meredith, Nashua and other places.

New-Hampshire is divided into 8 counties and 223 towns, and these with the population, according to the census of 1830, are comprehended in the following tables.

-POPULATION OF NEW-HAMPSHIRE, 1830.

New-Hampshire Register.

A LIST OF THE GOVERNORS AND COMMANDERS- IN-CHIEF OF NEW-HAMPSHIRE AND MASSACHUSETTS.

[New-Hampshire was settled in 1623, by Edward and William Hilton, brothers, from London, and David Thompson, from Scotland. During the first 18 years after the settlement, the people in the several plantations were governed by Agents appointed by the Proprietors, or by Governors chosen by themselves. In 1641, they became united to Massachusetts, and so continued until 1680, when New-Hampshire became a royal Province; and, excepting an interregnum from 1689 to 1692, continued a provincial government until the Revolution. Massachusetts was made a Province in 1692, and the same governor was over that and New-Hampshire, from 1699, until 1741, when a separate governor of New-Hampshire was appointed, and all connexion with Massachusetts ceased.]

The number of Lawyers in New-Hampshire in 1767 according to Mein & Fleeming's Register of New-England for 1768, was only eight, or one to every 6600 inhabitants. Wm. Parker, who died 5 June, 1813, at the age of 82, was the last living of the eight. Six years afterwards the number had more than doubled. In 1787, there were 29 practising attorneys in New-Hampshire, or one to every 4600 inhabitants.—

Of these only two are living, the Hon. JEREMIAH SMITH, LL. D. of Exeter, and the Hon. WILLIAM PLUMER, of Epping. In 1800, the number of Lawyers practising at the Superior and Inferior Courts, was 80, or one to every 2300 inhabitants. More than half of this number have since died. In 1810, the number was 123, or one to every 1800 inhabitants. More than half this number have since died or left the practice. Thirty-seven of this number have died and eight are now out of the state. In 1820, the number was 198, or one to every 1200 inhabitants. Of the one hundred and ninety-eight, thirty-two have died, nineteen others have left the state, and thirty have retired from practice. In 1830 the number was 232, (not including 13 who had retired from practice) or one to every 1100 inhabitants. The present number in practice may be estimated at about 207. The whole number of lawyers who have been settled in practice in this state is 476. Of this number, 183 were graduated at Dartmouth College, 104 at Harvard, 13 at Bowdoin, 6 at Middlebury, 6 at Williams, 3 at Brown, and one at each of the Union, New-Jersey, Vermont, and the Roman Catholic College. One hundred and forty-eight did not graduate, although a number of them were members of College before commencing their legal studies.
